International catwalk phenomenon, Versace, struts its timeless luxury into homes across the globe

WITH a name synonymous with style world-wide, Versace's revered status on global fashion catwalks is making a statement in the home.

The epitome of style and luxury, Versace Palace ceramic design will pave the way for flooring trends in seasons to come.

The latest range from the line, Versace Contemporary Oro/Almond, embodies the most sought-after features of fashion couture from the runways. The rich gold undertones of the Oro tile complement the chic neutral of the Almond hue, merging to create a look that won't go out of fashion.

"We're seeing a big return of neutral tones," founder and owner of Artistic Stone, Peter Maniscalco, said.

"It's all about longevity of design in these economic conditions and the best thing about these shades is that they are easily adaptable to any updates that you may want to add to your home in the years ahead."

Channelling the smooth, sleek lines of futuristic design, the tile still embraces a classical elegance through earthy surface tones.

The Versace Contemporary Oro/Almond range also allows you to custom-create your bathroom sanctuary to suit your personal style. With the Oro/Almond combination coming in both the Classic Range, in a polished-finish, or the Palace Stone Range, in either a natural stone-like finish or a semi-polished finish, this is stunning precision at its best.

As with every Versace Palace collection, Oro/Almond can be used in any architectural context to create strong stylistic links between rooms. The stoneware is used on both floors and walls from the bathroom to the kitchen, the living area to the bedroom.
