

If only I had...

Director of Interior Architecture for Allen Jack+Cottier, Scott Norton believes true innovation comes from searching for a solution to a problem, rather than merely trying to be innovative for its own sake. With a broad range of experience, he has earned an enviable reputation for his attention to detail.

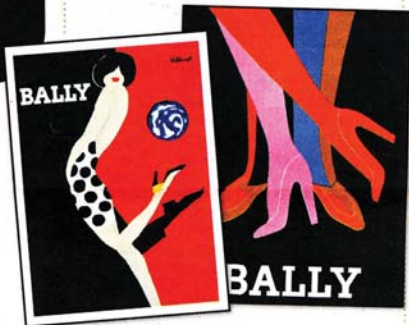

Glittering prize ...

If money were no object, the Glitterbox chandelier designed by George Baldele for Swarovski would hang above my dining table. It's contemporary and the play of light off the crystals is breathtaking.

Art of buying ... I love art but buying art for home never seems to make it to the top of my priorities. A mix of pieces would be my ideal, from vintage posters, photography, drawings and paintings. I have a vintage Bally poster from dealer Antonio Ruggerino, and would certainly invest in more.

Sounds great ... Music has always been important to me and I love a mix of genres including classical, jazz and flamenco. I have been waiting to claim my parents' grand piano for years but they are not giving it up any time soon, so I would commission a hand-crafted grand piano from Stuart & Sons in Newcastle. Their pianos are a work of art. I would probably choose a classic walnut or a modern highly figured sassafras.

Our top 3

Classic baking dishes, adaptable designer lamps and helpful picnic caddys catch our eye this week

Flower power ...

This striking lamp picked up the Commercial Award for Best New Release at this year's Australian International Furniture Fair for designer and UTS graduate Kristian Aus. The Metal Petal Table Lamp features four different standing positions, which alter the level of light it emits. The Metal Petal Table Lamp, $250, from Autumn Products

Classy caddy ...

This organic bamboo table caddy makes outdoor entertaining a breeze. Used in conjunction with the square serving tray from the same range, you'll never have to do the kitchen-to-table juggling act again. Table caddy, $49.95, and tray table, $69.95, from SunnyLIFE

Light years ... CorningWare SimplyLite is made from glass so is lighter than ceramic baking dishes. It's durable, with a non-porous surface that won't absorb odours, flavours or stains, and is dishwasher and microwave safe. The range comes in four sizes.

● CorningWare SimplyLite, from $39.95 to $59.95, at David Jones and homeware stores.
