

The good, the bad and the ugly

GOOD: At only 17 years old Selena Gomez (left) is already red-carpet savvy. While it must be tempting to dress like her other Disney alumni (Britney Spears, anyone?), the all-singing, all-acting teen sensation opts for chic embellishment but keeps it demure and cute with family-friendly proportions.

BAD: From its ill-fitting cut to its unflattering shade of yellow, this dress is doing nothing for Shakira (top right). And that's just a start, what about those shoes!? While it's a given to sneak in a couple of extra centimetres via some towering heels, the mega-platform style gives the petite Colombian singer's game away.

UGLY: It ought to be noted that Lil' Kim (right) is at least consistent. There must be enough written on her dodgy fashion sense to cover her from head to toe, but it's unlikely she'd read a word. The rapper flaunts everything, all at once, like it's nobody's business.

The checkout

BUILDING on its bamboo tabletop range, SunnyLIFE introduces the Lacquer Bamboo collection. Using the renewable resource bamboo, fresh colour ways, functional designs and stylish serving ideas come together for tasteful indoor and outdoor dining. Go to www.sunnylife.com.au for more.

FOR decades, Australians have chosen Zinke as their preferred sun protection. More than just a sunscreen, Key Sun Zinke (from RRP $5.99) is waterproof and offers a total sun block that forms a film over the skin reflecting and scattering UVA and UVB rays. Zinke by Key Sun is available at Priceline, Kmart and leading pharmacies nationally.

SOAP2GO, a paper soap range of personal care products, is the perfect solution for on-the-go cleansing — anywhere, anytime. Compact, convenient and easy-to-use, just add water to this range of water-thin sheets (RRP $2.99) and watch them instantly transform into a lather. Available from Priceline stores nationally.